Lemont Junior Woman's Club Offers
$4,500 in Scholarships to Community Volunteers

Lemont, Ill. – February 14, 2011 – Lemont residents who demonstrate a dedication to community service could earn $1,500 in scholarship funds from the Lemont Junior Woman's Club. The organization will award three scholarships in May to applicants who have made outstanding contributions to the community through volunteerism.

Qualified applicants include residents of Lemont who are either high school seniors or adult women returning to school. The review committee will be looking for applicants with a history of community service, a demonstrated commitment to volunteerism and strong academic performance. Those who wish to apply can find an application form and instructions at area high school guidance offices or by visiting the club's website at www.lemontjuniorwomansclub.org. Applicants must submit the application, along with two references and a 500-word essay, by April 9.

"Lemont is fortunate to have so many individuals committed to volunteerism and community service," said LJWC President Michelle Slater. "Our club is proud to recognize those women and young adults who do so much for our community and for those in need."
